Internal Parasite Control is Year-round

Internal parasites pose a significant threat to the health of horses, plus large and small ruminants, which are becoming popular with hobby and small-scale farmers.

According to the Purdue and Kentucky [joint] Extension Service, parasites can damage the gastrointestinal tract of ruminants, and result in reduced reproductive performance, reduced growth rates; less productive animals in terms of meat, fiber and milk; and even death.

Now is the time to work with your veterinarian and develop a parasite control plan.

November 17	Young Min Moon Department Chair and Professor Department of Art, College of Humanities and Fine Art UMass Amherst Registration Link: https://bit.ly/3AhjMqgx	Born in South Korea, Young Min Moon immigrated to Canada when he was sixteen. After being in a hard rock band for a few years as a lead guitarist, Moon heard a 'calling' when he encountered van Gogh's paintings in a library. He gradually shifted his main interest from music to art. After finishing his college in Toronto, he obtained his master's degree in California. After working as a coordinator for a large international exhibition in Gwangju, South Korea, he moved to Cambridge, MA to work as a teaching assistant for a former professor in

		California, who got a job at Harvard. Although his years at Harvard were pretty miserable, he learned a great deal about the art of teaching. After a number of years of being confused, Moon eventually got a full-time teaching job in Florida and worked hard to become a good teacher. After he moved back to the northeast, he started writing about art. When he published his first book, Moon became known as a critic and expert in contemporary Korean art. While he was honored to be recognized as a writer, his art took a backseat. For years Moon tried to bring a good balance between his own art, writing, teaching, and being a parent. Over the past three decades Moon has had some successes in his art, but he also had many failures and rejections. But he doesn't let failures and rejections affect him very much. He keeps on making paintings, while writing and teaching. Moon is a painter at heart and feels happiest when he begins a painting. Recently he has been painting the motif of a low dinner table full of delicious foods for ghosts of ancestors. He is a professor and chair of the department of art at UMass Amherst.
December 1	Abigail Franklin Archer Fisheries & Aquaculture Specialist Registration Link: https://bit.ly/3net1bS	Abigail Franklin Archer works as a Fisheries & Aquaculture Specialist with two organizations – Barnstable County and Woods Hole Sea Grant. She is a marine scientist and earned her Master's in Wildlife & Fisheries Conservation from UMass Amherst. She does scientific experiments and observation studies on a variety of animals such as oysters, quahogs, and a type of fish called river herring. All her work involves cooperating with town natural resources managers and shellfish aquaculture growers.
